

Assign Products in Category Maintenance

Overview

How many times have you been editing a category and wished you could add products to it while you were there? Good news - now you can.

We've added handy new functionality to Category Maintenance, allowing you to add, remove, and import products - even in bulk.

Here's what it looks like:

Here's some of what you can do:

You can mark a category as the primary category for a product (or multiple products), updating the product's SEO and breadcrumb info in the process.

There's also a link to edit the product's other categories, as well as a link to maintain the product itself.

Below is a video from our test environment that just gives you a little taste. For more detail, check out our guide here - Maintain Product Category in Category Maintenance.
